Related Info at BlueRobot

Many a talented web designer has struggled with CSS-based centering. Though CSS vertical centering eludes us, two techniques for horizontal centering are BlueRobot approved. Take your pick: Auto-width Margins or Negative Margin.

There is only one thing in the world that I can truly say I hate. One thing that gets so far under my skin I begin to shake whenever I see it. As I use the incorrect phone number listed to call and shake up. Only one thing that drives me crazy.

An advertisement for Ka Ray featuring a solid blue background. Three white rectangular tags are suspended by thin white strings from the top right corner. The top tag has a smiling face icon and the text "about us". The middle tag has a house icon and the text "Home". The bottom tag has a camera icon and the text "Gallery". Below the tags, the brand name "Ka Ray" is written in a large, elegant, cursive script. A smaller line of text at the bottom right reads "Your friends are here with you".

Part of your well-balanced breakfast?

There is clearly a need for CSS to be taken seriously by graphic artists. The Zen Garden aims to excite, inspire, and encourage participation. To begin, view some of the existing designs in the list. Clicking on any one will load the style sheet into this very page. The code remains the same, the only thing that has changed is the external .css file. Yes, really.

CSS allows complete and total control over the style of a hypertext document. The only way this can be illustrated in a way that gets people excited is by demonstrating what it can truly be, once the reins are placed in the hands of those able to create beauty from structure. To date, most examples of neat tricks and hacks have been demonstrated by structurists and coders. Designers have yet to

Thanks

Web design has come a long way in the two short years that the Web Standards Awards have been running. When we published our very first award (The 85th PGA Championship) we had to search high and low for sites that could meet our high expectations of both design and coding. Since then we've awarded exactly 99 other sites that have carried on that same spirit of technical and aesthetic achievement that we set out to highlight.

Now we've arrived at a situation where beautiful sites with beautiful code are being produced by the hundreds; every month, every week, every day. It's no longer a myth that you can produce a stunning site with Web Standards, and the most that our team can hope for is that the Web Standards Awards played at least a tiny part in helping to dispel that fallacy.

Effect or not, we feel that our mission is complete, that Standards have now ensured their rightful place in the process of Web design. So, it's time to hang up our spurs and focus our attention where it's needed most.

As a testament to the work of the pioneers who we applauded, this site will remain open as a record of 100 sites that helped shape a period in the Internet's development that we were — and still are — excited to be a part of.

Thanks for watching ...

What you need:

- pen
- poster
- glue
- foam
- scissors
- sellotape
- ruler
- fun shapes
- ribbon

What to do:

Put your poster on the foam, draw around it with your pen, then draw a squiggly line a few centimetres away from the poster. Cut out the squiggly line and the middle shape to get your frame! Put the frame face down, put your poster over it (so you'll be able to see the pic) and tape it down. Glue on some funky shapes and tape on ribbon.

The Story Of Film

By Mark Cousins
Supplied by Pavilion

Price: £25.00
Film history is no simple thing. It is filled with more twists than an M Night Shyamalan picture, more nuances than Citizen Kane and more stories than there could ever be time to tell. Giving anything more than a whistle-stop tour is a laborious undertaking for both writer and reader; however, Mark Cousins stomps through the silent era, Hollywood and the European avant-garde to Japanese and other non-Western filmmaking. At every turn he is incisive, colourful, provocative and probing. This is a truly important piece of film history literature. Read it now.

Supplied by Ebury Publishing
Price: £19.99

New for thirtieth edition, the TimeOut Film Guide continues to boldly go forth as one of the foremost film bibles. With over 16,000 reviews compiled over 36 years, every single visit uncovers a veritable feast of info to be devoured until you are fit to burst. This new edition includes 44 'backstory' interviews with filmmakers on significant recent releases and 122 illustrated 'Cinefile' features on classic, cult and underseen films. Essential.

Blockbuster

By Tom Stoppard
Supplied by Simon & Schuster

Ever wondered where and when the summer blockbuster was born? If you have, then Tom Stoppard's book has the answers to all your questions.

The former film critic for The Times charts the rise of the phenomenon of big movies with little plots, beginning with Steven Spielberg's 1975 sleeper hit Jaws and charting the movies that turned up the screens every consecutive year since, exploring exactly how they turned out of control in the '90s.

Ask the expert

Nutritionist Julie Dean answers your questions.

Why is it so important for children to drink water?

• Dehydration can affect children's development, and can cause lethargy and constipation. Children who are drinking enough water will feel healthier, have more energy and find it easier to concentrate, too.

How much water should my child be drinking?

• Just like adults, children need around six to eight glasses of fluid a day. More fluids are required in hot weather and after exercise.

How do I know if my child is drinking enough water?

• Check the colour of their urine, which should be very pale. When children are drinking enough water, they have more energy and also feel alert.

1 Last-minute present hint to our loved ones – this DAB digital radio has been designed by the king of glam prints himself, Matthew Williamson, and is therefore Very Desirable Indeed. It's available from branches of John Lewis, all of which are open until at least 4pm today: £125, 08455 049049 (johnlewis.com).

2 Mug trees are inexcusable. Mug racks, on the other hand, are rather a good idea since they take storage pressure off shelves and cupboards. This one comes with four colour-timing mugs. One for the must-buy list, we reckon: £25, by Joseph Joseph, 020-7261 1800 (josephjoseph.com).

Come January, the design world will be focusing on all things Chinese, so why not get ahead of the trend by knocking yourself up a cushion in one of John Stefanidis' new Beijing fabrics? US buyer wants Coles in its basket

Michael Evans

COLES MYER is likely to fall into foreign hands in what is shaping as the biggest corporate takeover in Australian history valued at more than $16 billion.

A group of US financiers, believed to be led by the private investment firm Kohlberg Kravis Roberts & Co, is understood to be behind an approach to the retail giant, founded in 1900.

A successful bid for Coles Myer, valued at nearly $15 billion, would easily top BHP's $9.2 billion buyout of WMC Resources last year. It would be one of the world's 10 biggest corporate takeovers.

The deal would see one of the country's biggest employers - with nearly 200,000 staff in more than 2000 shops from Coles supermarkets to Kmart and Target - fall into foreign hands.

Private equity firms such as KKR in New York traditionally buy companies with a view to cutting costs aggressively to maximise their returns when they quit the business in three to five years. KKR boasts that it is 30 years of business has turned $US25 billion into more than $US68 billion.

Last year it bought the American toy retailer Toys "R" Us for $US1.3 billion.

Coles Myer confirmed yesterday "it had been approached on behalf of parties wishing to hold discussions regarding the company's ownership". It did not have been approached with a view to selling. A key player is expected to be the major shareholder and dissident former board member Solomon Lew.

Mr Lew, who was overseas and could not be contacted yesterday, has been a staunch critic of Coles Myer management, including the chief executive, John Fletcher.

Market speculation on the identity of the interested buyers focused on a consortium led by KKR, but a spokesman for the firm in Hong Kong declined to comment. KKR recently entered the Australian market, buying the Cleanaway waste business from Brambles for $1.83 billion.

Another private equity firm, Newbridge Capital, which recently paid $1.4 billion to buy the Myer department store business from Coles Myer, has been linked to the consortium.

Last month the world's biggest retailer, Wal-Mart, was reportedly considering a strike on a big Australian retailer.

THE American primary school teacher accused of killing the six-year-old beauty queen JonBenet Ramsey at Christmas in 1996 says her death was an accident.

"I loved JonBenet," said John Mark Karr, 41, who Thai police said yesterday had confessed to the killing after his surprise arrest in an apartment in Bangkok. Authorities had followed him for three weeks as he sought a job teaching English.

He told Associated Press he was "very sorry for what

Karr's arrest after vanishing several years ago was a huge shock for his 85-year-old father. "I thought someone had killed him," Wedford Karr said, while sobbing from his home in Atlanta. "This is such a surprise that he is alive."

John Karr had disappeared after his release from jail in 2001. The teacher had spoken to family about his fascination with the Ramsey case. He had sold his father he was being held for investigation into the murder.

Wedford Karr said his son had written a paper about the Ramsey murder while at university as a mature-age student. His professor was so impressed he encouraged him to write a book about the Wednesday that he did not believe the family knew Karr. Karr said yesterday he made efforts to contact his victim's mother, Patsy, before she died of cancer in June "and it is my understanding that she did read my letters".

Wedford Karr said the research continued when his son moved his family to California. He took a job at a Catholic girls' school in San Francisco. In April 2001 the Sonoma County Sheriff's Department alerted officials at his next school that John Karr had been arrested over a "non-school-related incident". Superintendent Karr said. The divorce prohibited John Karr from seeing his three sons.

Mr Ramsey expressed relief at news of the arrest. "I hope this is a first major step in really drawing this to a conclusion," he said.

US authorities had been working with Thai police for about two months to track down Karr, officials said.

Lieutenant General Suwat Thamroongratkul told reporters in Bangkok: "He said he was in love with the girl, and on the day the incident happened, he went to see the girl at her house. The

Tories to convert council rent into mortgage

By Rosie Murray-West
and George Jones

EVERY social housing tenant will be given the opportunity to own his or her home under a Conservative government, David Cameron announced yesterday.

He wants to create a revolution in ownership by allowing any council tenant the right to convert rental payments into a mortgage.

"In this way we can create a whole new generation of home owners," the Tory leader said. "Millions of people would be able to own their flat, own their home. Millions of people would be able to pass property on to future generations."

Under the proposals, unemployed people would be able to use housing benefit to build up equity in their homes.

Michael Gove, the shadow housing minister, said it would be "extremely difficult" for people on benefits to own a home outright through the scheme but conceded that they would be eligible.

fering at the sharp end of the housing crisis".

Peter Tutton, of Citizens Advice, said that some people who had taken up their right to buy council properties had been unable to pay their mortgages and faced being left without a home.

"For them, the dream of owning a home has become a debt nightmare," he said.

Mr Gove emphasised that tenants would not be required to buy their properties under the proposals.

But he said: "If an individual knew they were investing in their own property instead of paying rent, they might put more of their discretionary income towards the cost of housing."

He said it was vital that social housing was replaced as it was sold off. Councils should be able to use the capital from selling the homes to build new houses.

MILLIONS of homes were facing their second major rise in fuel bills within six months yesterday after Powergen announced another round of price increases.

The German-owned company is increasing gas prices by 16.4 per cent and electricity bills by 9.7 per cent from Monday. It blamed the rising wholesale cost of gas, which it said had climbed by 87 per cent since the beginning of last year.

The increases follow similar rises by its major rivals, British Gas, EDF Energy and Scottish Power. Other suppliers are expected to follow suit over the next few months. Every major supplier has imposed at least two price increases this year.

Since March, gas bills for Powergen's 8.5-million customers have risen by 47 per cent and electricity bills by nearly 30 per cent.

Nick Horler, the managing director of Powergen Retail, said: "We take today's announcement very seriously and we have fully considered its impact on our customers."

The company said that more than 10 per cent of its customers would not be affected because they were on capped or fixed-price deals.

The rise was announced two days after Powergen's profits were shown to have fallen by 26 per cent. Profits of its parent company E.ON, based in Dusseldorf, rose by 13 per cent to €3.26 billion in the first half of the year.

$1300 за квадратный метр

ТАТЬЯНА АЛЕШКИНА

Рынок столичной недвижимости идет обвал в случае успешной реализации замыслов Федеральной антимонопольной службы (ФАС) и Генпрокуратуры. Вчера начальник управления ФАС по контролю и надзору в недвижимости, локальных монополиях и ЖСХ Михаил Евраев заявил, что квадратный метр в столице должен стоить $1300, то есть почти в три раза ниже сложившейся на сегодняшний день на рынке Москвы цены. В случае установления подобной «справедливой» стоимости квадратного метра социальный взрыв со стороны владельцев жилья недвижимости и граждан, внесших свои квартиры под залог ипотеки, не заставит себя долго ждать.

Как уже сообщал «Бизнес» (см. №148 от 14 августа), в конце прошлой недели Генпрокуратура поручила ФАС проверить московских, подмосковных и питерских застройщиков на предмет ценового сговора. Вчера Михаил Евраев заявил, что анализ рынка строительства жилья займет два-три месяца. По его словам, в случае обнаружения ценового сговора компании будут обязаны перечислить в бюджет незаконно полученный доход, а также исполнить предписание ФАС о снижении цен до уровня, который предшествовал ставкам. Более того, по словам застройщиков не существует, и цены на жилье в настоящий момент определяет рынок», — утверждает президент компании «Новая площадь» Борис Букатов. Более того, уверяет генеральный директор «Мизель-брюкеридж» Наталья Кирпонина, если ФАС обратится в суд, обоснует свои претензии к застройщикам и предоставит существенные доказательства, то по конкретным объектам вполне могут быть начаты судебные разбирательства. И в конечном итоге суд может обязать застройщиков пересмотреть условия договоров. В тоже время, обращает внимание партнер альянса юридических фирм Magisters Legas Елена Герасимова, на практике взыскать со строителей вложенных покупателями средств будет сложно даже по решению суда, так как квартиры в основном продают посредники, на счетах которых, как правило, отсутствуют денежные средства.

Действия ФАС на строительном рынке приведут к тому, что девелоперам станет невыгодно работать в сегменте жилой недвижимости, поэтому, скорее всего, они перейдут на рынок недвижимости коммерческой, или вообще направят свои деньги в другие отрасли экономики. «Это приведет к тому, что предложение опять сильно сократится. В такой ситуации, говорят эксперты, ча-

Прочтение деловых газет может вызвать этим летом у читателя ощущение полного апокалипсиса, устроенного чиновниками на всех сегментах рынка. Один за другим рекламный, алкогольный, игорный бизнес по очереди оказываются на грани существования.

Это не совсем так. Периодически чиновники радуют рынок. Но делают это специфически. Как в анекдоте советских времен о том, что гражданин СССР испытывает больше радостей, чем житель любой другой страны: «Колбасы купил —

Ладно. Поправки внесли. Участники парфюмерного рынка порадовались. Торговцы кремами больше не надо копить на ЕГАИС. Правда, духи Hugo Boss емкостью большей, чем сакральные 50 мл, по закону все равно остаются потенциальны

Потом послушали, что говорит операторы «наружки». Поняли, что перегнули палку. В итоге ГОСТ все-таки вступил в действие, но по договоренности с ГАИ рекламные щиты остались на месте. Зачем ГОСТ вводили, правда, осталось непонятно, но рекламисты порадовались.

Сегодня радуются участники парфюмерного рынка. Дело в том, что производителей духов, кремов и лаков для волос тоже записали в «алкогольщи

CSS positioning

“Mastering positioning with its enormous potential for layout flexibility and robust behavior will be one of the most rewarding challenges you can take on when learning CSS.”

Pomegranate

The Pomegranate (Punica granatum) is a fruit-bearing deciduous shrub or small tree growing to 5–8 m tall. The pomegranate is believed to have originated in eastern Iran and eastward, but its true native range is not accurately known because of millennia of extensive cultivation.

Carrot

The carrot (Daucus carota) is a root vegetable, usually orange or white in color with a woody texture. The edible part of a carrot is a taproot. It is a biennial plant which grows a rosette of leaves in the spring and summer while building up the stout taproot, which stores large amounts of sugars for the plant to flower in the second year.

CSS and JavaScript

CSS

JavaScript

var a = document.getElementsByTagName('a');
```

#content

var container = document.getElementById
( 'content' );
```

#extras p

```
var paras = document.getElementById
( 'extras' ).getElementsByTagName('p');

Attribute selectors

“Style an element either based on whether an element has an attribute name such as href or based on the attribute value.”

Accessing attributes

You can get attribute values

```
var a = document.getElementById
( 'content' ).getElementsByTagName( 'a' )[0] var href = a.getAttribute( 'href' );
```

or set them

```
a.setAttribute( 'title', 'I added this with the DOM' );
```

Creating content

var ul = document.createElement( 'ul' );
var li = document.createElement( 'li' );
var i = 1;
while( i < 4 ){
  var temp = li.cloneNode( true );
  temp.appendChild( document.createTextNode(
    'this is LI number '+i ) );
  ul.appendChild( temp );
  i++;
}
document.getElementsByTagName( 'body' )[0].appendChild( ul );

Raisin bread

Tea breads, half-way between bread and a cake are popular for tea, as they keep well and can be made in advance. Soda bread is a good substitute for yeast bread in an emergency, and can be made shortly before it is required.

Ingredients

5ml bicarbonate of soda
2.5ml cream of tartar
275g plain flour
100g butter
2.5ml ground ginger
5ml ground mace
2.5ml ground all spice

COOKBOOK 411

A Black Cod by any other name is a Sablefish

Words and pictures by Lara Ferroni

Or a Candlefish, Coalfish, Bluefish or perhaps the most descriptive, a Butterfish. So many names for one tasty fish! Black Cod has to be one of the simplest fish to prepare and still turn out restaurant-worthy. Chubby Hubby's blog first enlightened me to the ease of making a mind-blowingly delicious miso cod recipe. The moist, delicate flakes of the fish simply slide apart, somehow maintaining the perfect balance between smooth and firm.

Rustic Cherry Pie

My mom isn't a cake person. Growing up, our celebration treats were always pies, cupcakes were the closest thing to a birthday cake that she'd attempt, and then only under duress.

Hot Asparagus Dip

Here's a little spin on artichoke dip. Use asparagus instead. The result? Still creamy, but a bit more pungent and green, nutritionally excellent and easier to prepare.

Rhubarb Scone Cake

These are scones for the person who can't be bothered to make cute little triangles. Simply roll the dough out flat, smear on the fruit, roll and bake. And, what do you get for being this lazy? Gorgeous swirls in a tender crumb.

Nancy's Pasta with Greens

I was emotionally scarred by cooked greens. Greasy, mushy mustard and collard greens with overtones of lysol and sweat socks, any redeeming qualities long since boiled out.

Sesame Noodles with Cucumber

I always forget about tahini. I'm not sure why, when I have it, I'm always fond of the mild but nutty flavor. Sure, it's a touch paste-like. But paired with the right herbs or some chili flakes, it's a fantastic lower note.

Spring Veggie Tart

It has been well over a month since I've posted about a tart! I am going through tart-withdrawl, so last weekend whipped up this simple spring vegetable tart, with fresh, organic local asparagus, garlic shoots and morels that I picked up at Pike Place market.

Raisin bread

Tea breads, half-way between bread and a cake are popular for tea, as they keep well and can be made in advance. Soda bread is a good substitute for yeast bread in an emergency, and can be made shortly before it is required.

Instructions

I worked on 9 strands at a time, letting them relax before rolling and stretching it a bit further. In all, it took us about an hour to finish. We braided the stands then coiled them around a stainless steel bowl that we covered in tinfoil.

Bread Basket Chef baked them in a hot oven until the dough set, then removed the metal bowls and inverted the basket to dry out the inside. When she removed them from the oven, the outside was browned but the inside was still a bit soft, so we finished drying them at home. I'm not

Do you know the muffin man? Photography by Eric Fung

Breads and desserts are often baked and baking is the primary cooking technique used to produce cakes and pastry-based goods such as pies, tarts, and quiches. Such items are sometimes referred to as baked goods and are sold at a bakery.

Eric Fung is a software developer on weekdays, aspiring baker all other times. His journal serves primarily to document the Bakery Arts classes he is taking at George Brown College in Toronto, Canada.

The background image is an aerial photograph of a bridge spanning a river. The surrounding landscape is filled with vibrant autumn colors, including shades of orange, red, and yellow. The bridge itself has a blue railing and a dark deck. The water of the river reflects the surrounding trees.

Thanks

Web design has come a long way in the two short years that the Web Standards Awards have been running. When we published our very first award (The 85th PGA Championship) we had to search high and low for sites that could meet our high expectations of both design and coding. Since then we've awarded exactly 99 other sites that have carried on that same spirit of technical and aesthetic achievement that we set out to highlight.

Now we've arrived at a situation where beautiful sites with beautiful code are being produced by the hundreds; every month, every week, every day. It's no longer a myth that you can produce a stunning site with Web Standards, and the most that our team can hope for is that the Web Standards Awards played at least a tiny part in helping to dispel that fallacy.

Effect or not, we feel that our mission is complete, that Standards have now ensured their rightful place in the process of Web design. So, it's time to hang up our spurs and focus our attention where it's needed most.

As a testament to the work of the pioneers who we applauded, this site will remain open as a record of 100 sites that helped shape a period in the Internet's development that we were — and still are — excited to be a part of.

Thanks for watching ...
